

MARK EVANS

MANAGING DIRECTOR TRANSACTION BANKING

SKILLS, EXPERIENCE AND EXPERTISE

Mark is an experienced banker and has held senior roles across relationship, product and operations. Based in Sydney, he has been Managing Director of Transaction Banking since June 2016.

In his current role, Mark is responsible for end-to-end Transaction Banking services – including payments, cash management, trade finance and supply chain finance solutions – across ANZ’s home markets of Australia and New Zealand and the bank’s footprint globally.

Mark joined ANZ in 2009 as Global Head of Trade and Supply Chain, and in 2013 was appointed ANZ’s Chief Compliance Officer. In this role he was responsible for developing and implementing a global compliance framework and ensuring high compliance standards in all the jurisdictions in which ANZ operates.

Prior to ANZ, Mark spent five years at HSBC, initially as Head of Trade and Supply Chain for Australia and New Zealand and then three years in Hong Kong where he was responsible for the Trade and Supply Chain business across Asia Pacific.

This is part of a lengthy career that started with a graduate position with National Australia Bank and also various roles with St George, State Street and Commonwealth Bank.
